Tennessee State Forest Timber Sales Information

Each year stands of timber are selected to be harvested on the State Forests to maintain healthy forests or harvested to start a new forest cycle that maintains a healthy tree age and habitat distribution across the forests.

Tennessee's State Forest resources are utilized and managed for the citizens of Tennessee for multiple-uses. These forests are managed according to the state laws and rules found in the Tennessee Code Annotated, Title 11, Chapter 4; and Rules, Chapter 0080-07-01, Protection of the State Forests. Additionally, professional foresters manage the resources according to scientific forestry principles for their sustained use.

In the process of managing for healthy and sustainable forests and the utilization of the resources that are found on the State Forests, the State regularly harvests timber. Harvests are generally administered through timber sales and these sales are governed by the procedures outlined in General Services Rule 0690-2-1-.18 (a), Disposal of Forestry Products. Basically, the removals of regularly scheduled harvested timber are sold through a sealed bid process with the timber going to the highest bidder. The Purchaser and the State then enter into a Timber Sales Contract that outlines the terms and conditions of the sale and removal of the timber. By rule, all scheduled sales require the collection from the Purchaser a performance deposit in the amount of 7% of the sale price.
